

What are the specific trades that require a class C specialty contractor's license?

The CSLB issues licenses for the following classifications:

- Class A General Engineering Contractor. The principal business is in connection with fixed works requiring specialized engineering knowledge and skill.
- Class B General Building Contractor. The principal business is in connection with structures that shelter and enclose persons, animals, chattels, or movable property requiring in their construction more than two unrelated trades.
- Class C Specialty Contractor. There are 40 separate "C" license classifications for contractors whose construction work requires special skill and whose principal contracting business involves the use of specialized building trades or crafts. Manufacturers are considered to be contractors if engaged in on-site construction, alteration, or repair.

For a detailed description of these classifications, consult the CSLB Rules and Regulations in the California Contractors License Law and Reference Book. (See table below.)
